10 weeks of summer....How to make the most of this opportunity

- How to explore and develop your child's character during summer months and beyond.
- How summer experiences can decrease the stress of college applications.
- Understanding why it is important to match your child's character with his/her college.

"We encourage students to make use of their summers in the way they find most interesting. Trying to outthink or outguess the admissions committee strikes me as a useless exercise...For both education and life, the best program is the one that you find most valuable for yourself at this point in your life." (Yale Dean of Admissions Jeff Brenzel)

Paul Sacco B.A., M.A., P.P.S. - 35 years of high school experience as Special Education - Resource Specialist, Math Teacher, Guidance Counselor and Parent.
