

LGUSD and The Parenting Continuum Present:

The Common Core State Standards: What They Will Mean to Your Child's Education

Dr. Marie Alcock President, Learning Systems Associates

Wednesday December 5, 2012

7:00 p.m.

Blossom Hill Cafeteria

A message to our community about how the New Common Core State Standards will change the learning environment and requirements for students as they progress through K-12 in Los Gatos.

President of Learning Systems Associates (LSA) Dr. Marie Alcock is a national and international education consultant.

In addition she is currently on the faculty of Walden University's School of Education where she serves as a lead professor in curriculum, instruction, and assessment practices. Working with the American Education and Research Association (AERA) and People to People Dr. Alcock has traveled broadly to share her knowledge and to gain insight into what other countries are developing in the field of education. With extensive experience working in public and private education in Vermont, North Carolina, New Jersey, and New York City schools as a teacher and administrator Dr. Alcock brings a broad range of experience and knowledge peppered with an original vision to the field of education.

As a public advocate she founded the non-profit TEN list (Tomorrow's Education Network), which is dedicated to connecting the greater community with students in the classroom to improve student literacy.